About Instructor Colby Ye:

At age 10, Colby joined the Lone Star Gaveliers Gavel club, a youth speech club. In the beginning, he was reluctant to open up in public. But with more speeches, he became more and more comfortable speaking in front of a group, enabling him to earn his Advanced Gavelier Bronze Award and win many speech contests in the Dallas Fort Worth area.

At 8th grade, he was selected to be an attorney on his school's Mock Trial team. It was the classic case of "kids who work hard achieve success." His team won 1st place at the County level competition and he took home the Best Overall Attorney award.

In 2006, Colby ran Youth Leadership Program to train younger children on communication and presentation skills with the help of his fellow gavel club members. More than 60 elementary students signed up. The feed back was so great that it was continued every summer since then.

Colby became the sponsor of the "Future Leaders" group and grew it from about 10 members to more than 30 within a year.

At 10th grade, Colby advanced to the final round of the NFL (National Forensic League) national debate tournament, ranking him in the top 20 debaters in the entire nation.

Recently, Colby won the American Legion State Oratorical contest and will travel to Indianapolis to compete at the national level in April.

He would like to share his own experience on public speaking with other youth. He believes that if he can be transformed from a shy boy to a passionate speaker, everyone can. He will show you, no matter how scary public speaking is to you, with proper training, you will become a competent speaker.
